

The Honorable Michael K. Powell
Chairman
Federal Communications Commission

Dear Chairman Powell:

I am currently DishNetwork satellite TV subscriber and would like to voice of support to the pending merger of EchoStar and DIRECTV. The combination of these two satellite providers will provide numerous benefits to consumers like me, including more choices in channels, programming, increase options for broadband, and new television technologies. Without this merger, I do not think I will have many options for HDTV for a very long time.

By merging, the combined company will be a much stronger competitor to cable television, can offer more programming choices and, most importantly, all local TV channels in every market in the U.S. By providing local TV channels everywhere, this merger will make satellite television a strong alternative to cable in our community. Throughout the country, people will now be able to turn to satellite TV to access their local news, weather and community information, in addition to a comprehensive package of national video programming.

Just as exciting, the merger will bring the availability of affordable high-speed Internet service by satellite to over 40 million Americans who don't have ground access to high-speed Internet. These tremendous benefits to consumers won't happen without the merger. Satellite-delivered Internet service will bring an affordable and competitive alternative to cable modems and DSL to consumers in big cities, small towns and rural areas alike. This will give me a competitive choice for Internet access and will be especially advantageous to rural communities where cable modems and DSL are not likely to be available anytime in the near future.

In the interest of improving our access to competitive television and Internet service, I urge you to lend your support to this merger.

Sincerely,

Chuck Siefke
